Message from the Chair Governing Council South Regional TAFE

For more than four decades, the campuses making up South Regional TAFE have demonstrated wide support of Aboriginal people by promoting their participation in vocational education and training, and supporting their completion and achievement of qualifications.

During that time, the college and the Noongar people throughout the south of Western Australia have built strong and mutually beneficial relationships.

Noongar people have shown their commitment to training for entry into the workforce or advancing their own careers, and an eagerness to mentor others so they may enjoy the same benefits.

Following consultation with Noongar people and communities throughout the Great Southern and South West regions of Western Australia, the college has planned and developed culturally appropriate training programs and supported Aboriginal people in mainstream courses, giving them skills for sustainable employment and career advancement.

This consultation, and close collaboration, with Aboriginal people and the Aboriginal Employment, Education and Training Committee has underpinned the creation of this Reconciliation Action Plan.

The plan details strategies for the advancement of Aboriginal students and the strengthening of bonds between the Noongar people and the communities of the regions. In advocating cultural awareness and identifying opportunities for Aboriginal people, the plan aims to motivate people to undertake vocational education and training and improves their prospects for personal and professional fulfilment.

In developing this Reconciliation Action Plan, the college demonstrates its commitment to giving all community members the same opportunities for training and personal development.

I congratulate the Aboriginal Programs staff on their work on this document, which is an important conduit to reconciliation.

Professor Bryant Stokes

Chair, Governing Council
South Regional TAFE

Message from the Managing Director

Aboriginal history and culture are vital considerations in the development of the college's vocational education and training strategies and in business operations.

Cultural awareness underpins planning and shapes the development of appropriate training programs for Aboriginal people, promoting equal opportunities in training and industry.

Staff in the college's Aboriginal Programs unit enjoy close relationships with people in the local Noongar communities. They support students, both in the classroom and in the workplace. Aboriginal Programs staff implement specialised training programs for Noongar people and support their progress through mainstream courses.

The partnerships and close connections with Aboriginal Elders and community members help to inform training and the Aboriginal Training Strategy. They allow college staff and executive to identify VET programs for development.

An ethos of equality throughout our multicultural college is supported by its advocacy of cultural awareness training for all employees. This ethos is facilitated at the staff induction process and through ongoing refresher programs.

South Regional TAFE trusts that the formation of this Reconciliation Action Plan demonstrates its impetus to strengthen bonds between the college's people, the Noongar people of the regions, and the general population.

The solid partnerships between this college and local Aboriginal people are recognised and celebrated by the publication of this Reconciliation Action Plan.

I believe this is an innovative and constructive step towards reconciliation, and I am proud to endorse it.

Duncan Anderson

Managing Director
South Regional TAFE

Our Reconciliation Action Plan

The Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP) of South Regional TAFE has been developed in accordance with the framework and methodology provided by Reconciliation Australia.

South Regional TAFE has developed this RAP with the endorsement of the local Noongar communities to form a partnership that will enable us to work together and ensure better outcomes for our students.

South Regional TAFE's RAP builds on our existing Aboriginal Training Plan and articulates our commitment to developing ongoing opportunities to increase the participation and retention of Aboriginal people in the training, education, and employment sectors.

Our RAP evolved from many discussions with Aboriginal people around protocols, local culture, and our commitment to social responsibility.

Our RAP was developed through a consultative process involving members of our Governing Council, our employees, our students, and members of the Aboriginal community.

Discussions and consultations were led by the college's Aboriginal Programs branch.

Partnerships

The college will further develop partnerships already established with the Aboriginal community, and through this RAP strengthen our relationships with all communities, organisations and key stakeholders within our region.

Building our vision for reconciliation

As South Regional TAFE develops its vision for reconciliation, our hope is that through our role as a place of learning the college can build respect for the Aboriginal community and demonstrate our pro-active support for reconciliation.

We are committed to improving the educational and employment outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people and we will support development of an environment where all students can study together with a shared understanding of their history and a shared vision for reconciliation.

Implementation

The executive sponsor of the RAP is the Director, Organisational Services. This executive sponsor will ensure there are adequate processes in place to allocate work, monitor progress, and report progress to the college's Governing Council, and to the Aboriginal Education, Employment and Training Committee.

Implementation of RAP actions will rely on shared participation from all identified staff members and associated work areas.

Development of this RAP provides a vehicle for translating our commitments into action and provides an independent and public verification of our commitment to reconciliation.

Our business

South Regional TAFE services an area of approximately 196,600 square kilometres across the southern area of the State.

It operates 12 campuses in Albany, Bunbury, Busselton, Collie, Denmark, Esperance, Harvey, Katanning, Manjimup, Margaret River, Mount Barker and Narrogin, and employs about 210 staff. This significant footprint positions the college to respond to community and industry expectations in respect to the provision of publicly funded VET training.

South Regional TAFE employs one Aboriginal Manager for the Community and Health portfolio, one Aboriginal Programs Manager, five Aboriginal lecturers, and seven support staff and mentors.

The college has an obligation to meet the diverse training needs of both community and industry. This obligation is reflected in the broad scope of the college's qualification profile and the diversity of the student body.

By addressing skill shortages and providing second-chance and further educational opportunities for a diversity of students, the college plays a key role in contributing to the productivity of the regions.

South Regional TAFE has a long history of engagement with the Noongar people and seeks through effective delivery of training programs to provide opportunities to overcome social and economic disadvantage.

Respect for the diversity of students is a core value of the college, and underpins relationships with communities within its reach. We take pride in our partnerships with a number of Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal organisations, with whom we work to develop innovative strategies to give our students the best possible outcomes.

Working in partnership with the college's Aboriginal Education, Employment and Training Committee (AEETC), the Aboriginal Programs branch enables Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people to have an effective say and involvement in the planning and delivery of their own education, training and employment programs.

The AEETC has been very welcoming to the establishment of the RAP and has provided some very valuable recommendations and feedback.

This painting by Errol is full of symbolic meaning surrounding the theme of Reconciliation. Errol states it is an expression of “people coming together to achieve the aspirations of reconciliation” and the surrounding “Noongar country”
“The large circle on the bottom left represents the college reaching out to Noongar people offering pathways for educational training and careers within a framework of reconciliation as well as an exchange of cultural understanding.”
“The border represents the opportunities to be explored when knowledge and skills are successfully gained through reconciliation.”
